About iWiSS 2027

HARNESSING NANOTECHNOLOGY, ARTITICIAL INTELLIGENCE AND EMERGING TECHNOLOGIES FOR WATER SUSTAINABILITY.

The International Water Innovation and Sustainability Summit (iWiSS 2027) brings together scientists, policymakers, industry leaders, and community stakeholders to advance sustainable global water solutions. Organized by Teesside University (UK) under the NanoSolarWater Project - a UK-Africa collaboration funded by The Royal Society's International Science Partnerships Fund (ISPF) - the summit drives research into practice. The Summit Background

DRIVING WATER INNOVATION ACROSS AFRICA

iWiSS 2027 marks the expansion of the NanoSolarWater programme into West Africa through the Royal Society's ISPF International Collaborations Enhancement Award.

Hosted in Abuja, Nigeria, the summit reflects a shared commitment to improving access to clean water, promoting environmental sustainability, and building scientific capacity across Africa.

Our Vision

To establish Africa's leading international platform for innovation, collaboration, and knowledge exchange insustainable water resources, water treatment, and environmental resilience.

Our Mission

To connect science, policy, industry, and communities in developing practical and scalable solutions that improve access to safe water while advancing research excellence and sustainable development throughout Africa.

Sponsors & Exhibitors

iWiSS 2027 is open to registered delegates, invited guests and selected partners - guaranteeing high-calibre connections. Its programmes bring together leading researchers, policymakers, innovators and development partners focused on water sustainability.

Make your strategic investment in water, nanotechnology and sustainability count. iWiSS 2027 provides sponsors and exhibitors with direct access to global experts, policymakers, industry leaders, development partners and community stakeholders, while offering a platform to showcase technologies, innovations and solutions.

Position your organization at the forefront of sustainable water innovation in West Africa and gain valuable visibility, credibility, partnerships and opportunities for return on investment.

As a Sponsor:

- Associate your organisation with iWiSS 2027, an international forum on nanotechnology, artificial intelligence and emerging technologies for sustainable water solutions, organised by Teesside University (UK) and African universities/partners under the NanoSolarWater Project, with support from The Royal Society through the International Science Partnerships Fund (ISPF).

- Choose sponsorship options aligned with your marketing and business objectives, including keynote and panel visibility, exhibition space, digital promotion, stage branding, delegate communications, Gala Dinner sponsorship, Student 3MT® Awards, and Technical Field Trip branding.

- Benefit from year-round visibility through pre-event promotion, on-site engagement in Abuja (16-18 August 2027), and post-event recognition across official channels and the iWiSS delegate network.
